

Dear QUAD Participants,

Wow! What an event! And 1999 marks the year we saw more QUAD participants at the swim than the ski. Big congratulations go out to all 330 who completed the second "leg" of the four-event season—we're half way there! And whoever said the swim was easier than the ski was obviously talking about the distance only and not the event itself. Believe me, if you finished the four lengths, you're a success story.

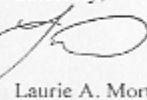

Besides being awed by awesome individual athletes like Rick Podbielski, who set a new QUAD Swim record by finishing in under 50 seconds, I was also blown away by the company teams and families that participated at both the clinic and the event. Chad Weaver and dad John Weaver finished at 50:42 and 1:08 respectively. Barbara Ruscito swam with her three daughters Rachel, Meghan, and Ali—finishing times ranging from Ali's 1:38 to Barb's 3:05—what a great family effort! For many QUAD participants, it doesn't seem too long ago that Nancy Herbst—women's QUAD Swim Champion—had to miss the Swim because she was pregnant. But in the Herbst family tradition, Casey—now age 10!—boasted a 1:13 finishing time.

As with the ski, I must tout the Swim Clinic as essential. It was great getting in the water, doing the laps, and being realistic about what four lengths consist of—it's longer than it sounds. Until the clinic, the last time that I was seriously in the water on a regular basis was during synchronized swim lessons in 8th grade at the Eastside YMCA—uncanny that it was the same "magical year" during which I had last cross-country skied. And intense is the only way to describe the QUAD Swim. You start the event waiting—I'm watching everyone in line, trying to judge and stand next to those who "appear" at my level of "athleticism" so I might actually be a competitor in my heat. I did see Robby Dartnell and decided to steer clear of him and his father since this five-year-old champion beat me at the ski. Then I go from this state of waiting in complete dryness and apprehensiveness, to being soaking wet and adrenaline pumping. First length—no problem; second length—um, I'm slightly tired; by the end of the third and beginning of the fourth lengths, I was praying and doing a type of breathing I'm sure I'll learn in Lamaze someday. Yet over the sound of splashing water I heard Highmark teammates cheering me on during that fourth length—"yes I can do this!" And when I touched the wall and looked up at the clock, I was elated to see 2 minutes. I didn't look at seconds or "subseconds"—all that mattered was that it took me less than four minutes—my personal goal!

Whether you're competing against other athletes, your own teammates, your own best time, or attempting to have the most fun with each event—the QUAD is about getting out there, getting active, and meeting those personal goals.

Now it's time to start training for the QUAD Bike, and it seems as if the summer-like weather is cooperating. It's just 12 miles right? How hard can it be? Well let's see—I can't remember the last time I biked 12 miles—have I ever biked 12 miles? (Thank goodness for the training books.) Again, congratulations on making it this far and good luck training for the Bike—you're already a success and you're almost a champion!

Sincerely,

Laurie A. Morton
