

Dear QUAD Participant,

If young Adam Holland doesn't get in the pool and swim the fastest time in the twenty years of the QUAD, then the men's winner is 38-year-old QUAD Alumni and three time overall champion (1985-87) Dave Utley.

If Jen Slack, assistant swim coach at Penn State Behrend doesn't decide to do her very first QUAD event ever which resulted in her blistering the pool in the fastest women's time in twenty years, then the women's winner is 14-year-old Kristin Curtze, a freshman at General McLane, a school that doesn't even have a swimming pool.

But Adam, (the youngest of four swimming Holland brothers, QUAD participants all) did in fact swim and it was a sight to behold. The new QUAD record holder (assuming he completes all four events. C'mon, Adam, you know you want to) flashed through the water leaving a wake you could surf on.

And Jen Slack swam too, falling prey to the sales pitch of Mike and Megan Collins who reasoned with her that she just had to do the QUAD Swim. And they will continue I'm sure, to sell Jen on the bike, run and ski. It would be tough to find better mentors.

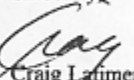

And if I can just talk for a moment about my scene. Four times a year, on the eve of each QUAD event, I get a little edgy (my wife has a different word for it) thinking about what has to be done the next day, wondering if the volunteers will show up, hoping I have my bases covered. This year was very different. The night before this year's QUAD Swim was the Night of No Sleep, the Evening of Tossing and Turning, the Nightmare of Craig's-Gotta-Swim-Tomorrow.

Then came the dawn and in what was seemingly both an eternity and a flash, I was standing on the starting blocks. Several blurry moments later, I was dripping and drying off, seated in a chair with this growing glowing within me. "Hey," I thought to myself, "I did the QUAD Swim Meet!" At that moment I truly didn't care about my time, my form nor did I have any cares at all. I had trained for and done the QUAD Swim. And I had a blast!

I very sincerely want to thank the many people that helped that day to allow me a shot at this anniversary event and a special thanks to the many people that gave me tips, encouragement, or a kind word. Thank you all for being part of the 20th Highmark Blue Cross Blue Shield QUAD Games as well as being part of an important memory for me.

Can't wait for the bike.

Sincerely,

Craig Latimer
