

Dear Highmark QUAD Participant,

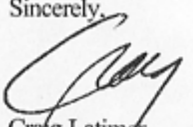

If ever you wanted a built-in, prefab excuse for rolling over in bed and NOT doing a Highmark QUAD event, there was a beauty of an opportunity on the morning of April 4. I'm sure you remember the freaky snow storm (that only got freakier as you got closer to Edinboro.) Add to that the event falling on the morning of daylight savings (there is something especially cruel about losing an hour of sleep and then waking to wet, cold, unskiable snow.) And oh yeah, the event du jour was the QUAD Swim, everyone's favorite petri dish of anxiety. The whole scenario made it especially easy to just brew another pot of coffee, linger over the Sunday newspaper and then see what time the next European Arena Women's Football League game was on the tube.

But no.

That is not the mindset of the heroes and heroines of the Highmark QUAD Games. They flew in from Florida, drove in from Ohio and Pittsburgh, caravanned out from Erie, carpooled in from McKean and Albion and Harborcreek and points beyond and in between. They overcame injuries real and imagined and conquered unimaginable anxiety (which I can only imagine though I myself haven't participated in two years). It was as it always is: a day filled with inspirational acts of bravery that escape the greater attention that is richly deserved. I am very sincere when I say that the admiration I have for those that show such grit and determination is boundless.

My thanks to the Presque Isle Cycling Club for their terrific bike expo, an event I hope is the first of many in conjunction with the QUAD Swim.

Sincerely,

Craig Latimer
Coordinator
