Dear Highmark QUAD Participant,

Twenty-five years later, running is a bit different but still here.

When the Highmark QUAD Games began in 1983, running was huge in the United States. In 1977, a writer named Jim Fixx wrote a book called The Complete Book of Running and it became a publishing phenomenon going through countless reprinting and fueling a near national obsession with running. Running was still going full bore when the QUAD commenced five years later but it's interesting to note that there were no other significant bike races or cross-country ski races going on at the time.

If you didn't come of age in the people sport world back then, it might be hard to imagine just how big the running boom was. Nearly every weekend there was a ten kilometer race somewhere in the region that drew a big crowd with various 'triple crown' series races of 5, 10 and 15 kilometers, half-marathons and marathons crowding the schedule from May through October.

In hindsight I suppose it was a good thing that there was once a running obsession that occupied the national consciousness rather than what seems to be an eating obsession that characterizes so many Americans now.

While there may not be as many running events as there used to be, it felt really great to be in a crowd of runners at the Highmark QUAD Run in North East. I love that course and I love the attitude of the crowd that covered the course. I usually get to watch the smiles of completion and satisfaction that people have when they cross the finish but I was busy working on one of my own when I got to the line.

This participating in the event as opposed to my usual sideline vantage point takes me to a place that is hard to describe. I'm always concerned that by being out on the course at 'Go' time I risk doing two things badly: turning in a half-baked personal performance while the event heads off kilter because the organizer is literally out running around.

But then I remember that I've got great support staff and volunteers and a wonderfully supportive group of participants that seem to get as much of a kick out of doing these things as I have had over these many years of putting them on. I finally come to remember this a whole lot better when I'm out on the road trying to go at it as hard as you.

I had five miles of great memories on race day and I hope you did as well. This is a pretty special place all it's own, this Highmark QUAD community, full of amazing people between the ages of seven and eighty years old. I am humbled and lucky to be a part of it.

Sincerely,

For quality

We provide more than access to quality healthcare. We offer lifestyle improvement programs and 24/7 support from a registered nurse through Blues on CallSM. We provide information to help evaluate options with your doctor, and operate the Highmark Caring Place for grieving children and their families. Because at Highmark, we believe quality of life is the whole point of healthcare.
